Dear John,

Congratulations! You have been selected to receive a prestigious National Science Foundation (NSF) Computer Science, Engineering, and Mathematics Scholarship (CSEMS). The funding for these scholarships is coming from an NSF grant entitled "Clearing a Path for Talented and Needy Students to Pursue Careers in Computer Science and Information Technology." We are awarding you $1,562.50 for the fall 2003 semester. We plan to award you the same amounts for up to four years of study at Armstrong Atlantic assuming that you continue meeting the requirements of the scholarship. Thus, you could receive up to $12,500 in scholarship.

There are several requirements involved in accepting and maintaining this scholarship. If you agree to the terms in the acceptance letter, please send a signed copy of it to Chris McCarthy. We recommend you start a file that contains copies of all your paperwork relating to the NSF CSEMS scholarship. Please regularly check the NSF CSEMS Web site that is accessible from the School of Computing Web page (www.computing.armstrong.edu). Once again, congratulations on this important milestone in your career.

Sincerely,

Dr. Raymond Greenlaw
